Junior Tennis Championship.

The District junior tennis championship started this morning at the Princeton Tennis Club courts, with thirty-eight of the District's leading young racqueters getting into action.

Despite the defeat of the home club yesterday, something like 12,000 persons paid to see the fireball king. All of which proves that it pays to advertise. Business Manager Rickey of the Browns ran large paid ads—with pictures of Johnson—in yesterday's papers.

The junior players have been displaying great form this year, Deane C. Howard of the Chevy Chase Club performing well in the middle Atlantic singles and Harold Call. Just to prove that he wasn't what the fans thought he was, Rondeau, after being called out on strikes his first two times up, grabbed a single and a double on his subsequent two trips. It is questionable if there is another man in the country who can point back to such a coaching record as that of Charles E. Courtney, head coach of rowing at Cornell for many years. Fiftynine times since he has been at the head of aquatics at Ithaca has Courtney sent his crews against representatives of other universities and thirty-nine of the races have resulted in victories for his men. Cornell, under Courtney's regime, has established a wonderful reputation for the prowess of its boats, and has long been envied by others. No other university in the United States can point back to such a splendid record

The Treasury team is the winner of the first series in the Government League. Treasury and Commissioners were tied for the honor, but the title was awarded to the former because of a protested game between that club and Commissioners having been awarded against the last mentioned on the ground of ineligible players having been used. The Drillery has forfeited its franchise in the league, and the vacancy is open to any good team which desires a berth in a good, strong amateur circuit. President J. W. Marbury would be glad to hear from any good club which would like to play organized amateur ball.

The fight in the Potomac League for the championship of the first series, and in the next series, too, is very interesting. What is more, nearly all the

In an exhibition match on the courts the middle Atlantic doubles champions, defeated John M. Hancock and Charles T. Chapman in four sets—6—4, 8—6, 6—3, 9—7. Doyle played a sterling brand of tennis, his brilliancy staving off defeat for his team in the second set after the opposing pair had run the score to 6-5. In the second and fourth sets Hancock and Chapman led at 5—2, but were unable to withstand the onslaughts of the Columbia Country Clubmen. LONDON, June 19.—Base ball has at last obtained a firm foothold in England, and is being played to such an extent in and around London by Canadians whom the war has brought over that a league has been formed among teams drawn from the army pay office and other colonial units, the staffs of the various Canadian military hospitals and munition workers.

The Canadians having intimated that they would welcome the entry of an American team into the league, one such is being formed by J. G. Lee of Central buildings, Westminster.
